Graeme Watson, Scottish Highlands

Graeme Watson, who farms at Nether Cortes, Lonmay, Fraserburgh in the North East of Scotland ceased dairy production a few years ago. He is only a few miles from Robert Chapman's Farmlay base and decided to take advantage of this by starting a free range egg unit, production is due to start soon. James Killen Ltd was chosen to supply the 12,000 bird building.

Graeme is very pleased with how the project was managed and completed by the Killen team, in what turned out to be the worst winter in a long time. "We received the first snow falls at the end of November and the last just coming up to Christmas. It was very extreme conditions to be undertaking any construction". The unit has now been fitted out ready for production to start. "The Killen team were determined to get the shed built. Their speed and persistence along with some luck from Mother Nature allowed it to be completed in good time. I have no doubt it will withstand the test of future winters" said Graeme.

James Killen prides itself on its quality and service at the right price. Since our first shed was completed in Fraserburgh last year we have constructed free range sheds in all parts of the UK. We now have timber broiler sheds on the books for the summer and are pleased to announce the launch of the new clear span steel range. GB sales and technical support is covered by Rob Shaw who is based in North East England.
